The Honorable Chuck Schumer
Majority Leader
United States Senate
322 Hart Senate Office Building
Washington, DC 20510

Dear Majority Leader Schumer,

As leading New York and national organizations that support health coverage parity for mental health and substance use disorders (MH/SUD), we write to ask you to continue to support civil monetary penalty authority for the U.S. Department of Labor (USDOL) to enforce the Paul Wellstone and Pete Domenici Mental Health Parity and Addiction Equity Act of 2008 (MHPAEA). This authority has been included in every version of the Build Back Better Act, and it is critical that the Senate includes it in any final package. Providing USDOL this authority will make recent MH/SUD investments (e.g., those contained in the Bipartisan Safer Communities Act) go much further by ensuring that insurance companies are meeting their parity responsibilities and are not the unintended beneficiaries of taxpayer funds that effectively displace insurance reimbursement.

In a damning January report to Congress on health plans' failure to comply with MHPAEA, USDOL unambiguously called on Congress to amend the Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA) to provide it with this authority to "greatly strengthen the protections of MHPAEA."¹ Despite finding that "[n]one of the comparative analyses reviewed to date have contained sufficient information upon initial receipt" and identifying numerous parity violations, USDOL noted that its current authority falls short in deterring plans from violating the law.

In the middle of a MH/SUD crisis – with overdose deaths now exceeding 107,000 in the latest 12-month period² and with leading national children's organizations³ and the U.S. Surgeon General⁴ sounding the alarm on youth mental health – Congress should not miss this opportunity to close a glaring loophole that undermines parity. In New York State alone, overdose deaths increased 45 percent between December 2019 and December 2021, according to CDC data.

Civil monetary penalty authority will position USDOL – which has one investigator for every 12,500 plans⁵ – to step in more aggressively when necessary to change plans’ coverage practices, make parity a reality, and increase access to life-saving treatment. While New York State regulators and Attorney General Letitia James have been stepping up parity enforcement, USDOL’s lack of this basic enforcement authority leaves the millions of New Yorkers in self-funded ERISA plans with comparatively little protection, because USDOL (the sole agency able to protect them) has one hand tied behind its back.

The civil monetary penalty provision contained in previous reconciliation packages carefully balances the interests of Americans seeking MH/SUD care with insurers, plan sponsors, and administrators attempting to comply with the law. By adding MHPAEA to USDOL’s existing civil monetary penalty authority for violations of the Genetic Information Non-Discrimination Act (GINA), this provision captures the existing safe harbor provision that protects insurers, plan sponsors, and administrators that exercise “reasonable diligence” to comply with the law.

Civil monetary penalty authority to ensure compliance with MHPAEA has enjoyed bipartisan support in the past. President Obama’s Mental Health and Substance Use Disorders Parity Task Force strongly recommended providing this authority⁶, as did President Trump’s Commission on Combating Drug Addiction and the Opioid Crisis.⁷ In fact, former New Jersey Governor Chris Christie, chair of the Commission, stated that the authority is “absolutely necessary” and that the Commission “unequivocally” supported Congressional action to give USDOL the authority to issue penalties.

Our organizations hope that Congress will seize this opportunity to give USDOL the powers it is requesting help end discrimination against individuals living with mental health and substance use disorders. We stand ready to assist you however we can.

Sincerely,
